Lake Erie Press Association.

An adjourned meeting of this Association will be held at Meadville, Pa., on Thursday, Feb 15, 1866, to which we cordially invite publishers, editors, reporters and regular correspondents and contributors to newspapers or periodicals in Western Pennsylvania, Western New York and Eastern Ohio and other localities convenient to the place of meeting. The business and social objects of the Association will be apparent to all journalists, and we sincerely request all to shake off distinctions of party creed, to attend the meeting and join the Association. For the Association,

The Drama Fifty Years Ago.

The hurried "Recollections" of the drama as it was, and is not, attracted the attention of "other old people," one of whom, in a graceful article, gossiped with the readers of the Times yesterday. To the influence of "old people," amounting even to querulousness in matters of taste and opinion, I am by no means insensible, having seen and felt the changes, especially in reference to "thoughtants," though I cannot yet say that the Christmas "numbers" has lost its flavor. But Stuart's syrup is a marvelous improvement upon "sugar house" molasses, for I remember that the enjoyment of the luxury was somewhat marred by a unsightly legend which mixed in gross type with the dark colored treacle.

"Bill's" buckwheat cakes, in William street, sample as was the venue, enthroned in those days before our tastes had been pampered, to draw the cultivated and distinguished men of the city together socially. By the way there is a kindred institution behind the Madeline Church, in Paris, where Amurins bit-kiss upon buckwheat cakes, home associations impinging additional zest to the repast. Many years ago I sent back wheat flour to a friend in Dublin in who could it. I had inserted the absence of this wholesome nutriment. But great was my surprise to learn by a letter from the lady that the cakes had been served in the parlor to a large evening party!

I learn from another source that the Bowery is being "sphinxfully paved" at Wallack's and I intend to have a "good time" there. My first recollection of the theatre was in Brooklyn a year or two ago, when Andrews, (who is of the starting old stock,) played Ezekiel Homespun.

I am aware that memory like "distance" not only lends enchantment to the view, but invests objects with wondrous attributes. But I reflect old folks. I differ myself that I could then determinate between dramatic wheat and chaff. I did not name Simpson or Cooper, for I know that their popularity was factitious. Indeed I only remember Simpson's attitudes in which his lovely legs were the prominent feature. Nor do I name Mrs Duffy, (with a kind of husband) for charming as she was in soubrettes, much of her popularity was due to the excellence of her private character. I say, but I intend to adduce, Charles Kemble, and I was as certain then as now, that he was only great because he wore a cable. Sir, much later in life could I become interested in Macready, that impersonation of cold marble, whom the English dubbed Bill with Dowton, who came over in 1839. I was delighted. There, indeed, art improved into perfected nature. "Old Tom Dowton" was great. Greatness, I admit, was more easily achieved then. Incidents abounded with two scenes—"Black Eyed Susan" and "Cross Roads Blacksmith."

I cannot assent to the harsh judgment upon Old Burns. He was no "mag," though he did cook, and played all parts alike. But he played some parts well, and was a useful actor. My memory dwells more pleasantly on the lady, and the delicious acting of Mrs Barnes, with whom "Belgravia" died. Of Hackett I can only speak as a scholar, a gentleman and a friend. For strength enough I have never seen himself. What he was on the 14th bound, I was living in the country.

Sir, I concur with qualified approval of Placide's excellence. He was truly in the company of the old school, and while he certainly did lack the "unction (the exact word) of that immortal droll Burton, how can it be said that he was cold or seldom funny? I cannot now think of him in a dozen characters without a laugh. His humor was quiet, but humorous.

My play going days are well near over so I will not absolutely deny that Wallack's theatre, with its gorgeous and appointments, is superior to the Park in its palmy days. But I am supported of the association by a writer evidently well informed. And in support of my opinion or prejudice in the decadence of the drama I affirm that Gilbert embodied more talent and genius in his company at Albany in 1828 than can now be drawn for, they from all the theatres in New York, Philadelphia and Boston. Mrs Gilbert (Miss Holman) was here the star of dazzling brilliance. Tell me among the celebrities of to-day, where are your successors to Hilson and Mrs Gilbert as Sir Peter and Lady Teazle? Where can shine the death of Hayne as your "Gold finch" or passing from the sublime to the ridiculous, why Hackett merit moving extravagant "Rouliers Pumpson" obsolete, but that Hilson and Barnes have shuffled off this mortal coil. I wonder if there are any old playgoers left who remember little Miss Rock, Captain Odiboy, (Hackett) Irish girl who so spirited, joyous, gushing manner charmed everybody. Hackett was rident and genius! But speaking, even would light up and even be unduly hot in our common place features.

There is certain decaying taste of art in poetry and painting. Not its cultivation indispensable to appreciation of excellence. The head may cool the heart never. Who in his sensibles and unsophisticated, could be charmed to Milton or Hall or Coleridge? Who for the first time in life the with no intelligence and feeling, would not know that Kean and Rachel were illustrious? Who, man who fully understood art, would pass through a gallery without being arrested and thrilled by a Murillo? Who, who knows Campbell, Moore, Scott and Byron without having the insanity within him keyed? But this! where are the successors of Murillo, Milton and Burns?

Another correspondent of the Times corrects my lapse at memory concerning the location of the old City Market "which was situated at the foot of Market lane, and not, as I stated, at the foot of Fair street." If the song so popular in my day had reached him, I should not have fallen into the error. That song commemorated the sorrows of a Waiter, who loved a lass in the Market lane. My Market, but like others of our sex, came to grief, for, on his return from a voyage, found the Aerial Gymnastics.

An aeronaut named Baisley recently made an ascension in San Francisco, in which he indulged in the most foolhardy feats. Attached to his balloon instead of the customary parachute or car, was a trapeze (two ropes suspended about two feet apart, with a stout stick connecting them at the bottom), and from the moment that the balloon was cut from its anchorage, until close the height of the people he commenced his performance, hanging by his feet and hands to the trapeze, then again by one foot and then by the neck. The balloon mounted to a great height and when so far up that Baisley appeared to be of the size of a small child, he could be seen changing to the trapeze, first by his hands, then by his feet with his head down, then lying across it on his breast and back, imitating the motions of a swimmer. The crowd seemed perfectly awed and thunderstruck by his temerity, several fainted and it was not till it was seen that he "sat and ate" with perfect coolness and confidence that the people could make known their condition, while it can found expression in shouts of applause. After remaining in the air between half an and twenty minutes, an attitude of over half a mile he slowly descended and reached the ground in safety.

—Always be as witty as you can with your parting bow your last speech is the one remembered.

—Dr. Abernethy used to tell his pupils that all human diseases sprang from two causes—eating and fretting.

—Why is a clock the most modest piece of furniture? Because it covers its face with its hands, and runs down its own works.

Longevity of Churchmen.

Some of the most remarkable cases of longevity have been met with in those who were engaged in the service of the Church. We speak now irrespective of sect. The Cardinal de Salis, Archbishop of Seville, died in 1785, at the advanced age of 110 years. He may be cited as an undoubted instance of the advantage to be derived from regular living. He used to tell his friends when asked what system he observed, "By being old when I was young, I find myself young when I am old." He was sober and studious, but not a lazy or sedentary life. My diet was sparing, though delicate, my liquors the best wines, Xeres and La Mancha, of which I never exceeded a pint at any meal, except in cold weather, when I allowed myself a third more. I rode or walked every day, except in rainy weather. I exercised within doors for a couple of hours. So far I took care of the body, and as to the mind, I endeavored to preserve its tone by a scrupulous obedience to the Divine commands. By these innocent means I have arrived at the age of Methuselah, with less injury to my health and constitution than many experience at forty." The wines drank by the Cardinal were of the pure juice of the grape, without the addition of brandy.

M. du Belloy, Archbishop of Paris, lived to a good century. He had always a good appetite, and loved good cheer. His face is said to have brightened up at the sight of a dainty dish. Napoleon always evinced great deference and respect for the aged prelate. Fléchier, the eminent French pulpit orator, died in 1710, he was 78 years of age. His contemporaries, Bossuet, Bourdaloue and Massillon, reached respectively the age of 72, 77 and 79 years. Cardinal Fleury, the preceptor and afterwards the prime minister of Louis XV, was 82 at the time of his death. Bishop Warburton, author of the "Divine Legation of Moses," reached 81 years.

John Wesley does not appear to have inherited a strong constitution, resembling in this respect Sir Isaac Newton and Voltaire. In his youth he was subject to many ailments, and even sometimes dreamed, but after the age of forty he enjoyed for the most part excellent health, until within a few days of his death. He was always exceedingly temperate, and abstained from the use of all intoxicating liquors and rose uniformly at four o'clock. He was of a very cheerful disposition and even temper, great prolonged life. He took constantly exercise of the most active kind, on horseback or foot and coll wind and rain. He was clever of order and regularity in everything. In his journal Wesley tells us, that from ten to fifteen or fourteen years of age he had little but bread to eat, and no great plenty of that. Has, he believes, was so far from hurting him that it laid the foundation of lasting health. When he grew up he drank freely, and drank water, following the advice of Dr. Cheyne, whose work he read. At the age of twenty seven he was spitting of blood as he moreover, from the lungs is generally called. A warm climate cured this. Fifteen years from this time, he says that he was in the third stage of the consumption. With the present better knowledge of the nature and diagnosis of this disease we cannot well credit the accuracy of the author's narrative. At one time he was brought to the brink of the grave by a fever, but this at sick left him in better than before. At a more advanced period of his life, he writes: "I am 71 old and am far older to preach than I was at three and twenty. What marvellous cause had God used to produce such wonderful strength? 1. Continual exercise and change of air. 2. Constant rising at four. 3. Ten nights, I never want to sleep immediately. 4. The never having lost a night's sleep in my life. Implicit faith should be placed in the last, but in my life I have six "accesses of temper." At the open has of his 83d year he makes the following record. "In my 17 entered on my 83d year and found myself just as strong to labor and as fit for exercise of the body or mind as I was forty years ago. I am as strong at 83 as I was at 21, but undoubtedly more healthy, being a stranger to the headache, toothache, and other bodily disorders which attended me in my youth." Again in the age of 84, he observes: "I am a wonder to myself. It is now twelve years since I have felt any such sensation as weariness."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Haunted Houses.

The foolish story of a house being haunted in Derby brought to our recollection the talk of a thing of this kind in which there was no imposture. The owner of a large brewery in England employed an Irish watchman—good, honest, earnest, and none the worse for having a touch of superstition about him. He came to the owner one day and tendered his resignation. "What's the matter, Pat?" was the inquiry, as rapidly as he looked remarkably demure. At last it leaked out that he was certain the place was haunted. He had heard strange noises. So the master, not wishing to lose so faithful a watchman, told him to call him next time the noises were heard. A few nights afterwards he came, declaring that the gate had been ringing of itself furiously and without intermission. The owner got up and went with the watchman to the brewery gate. No one was there, but the bell was ringing, ding, ding, ding and the handle was even seen to move of itself. They then went to the bell and kept ringing at short intervals, of itself, and most violently. The watchman now was quite convinced, but the owner, instead of, they should walk all along the cellar where the wire passed, and in doing so a large rat was found who, in trying to jump across from one part of the ceiling of the cellar to another had jumped short and was suspended by his two fore paws, which were hanging over the bell wire. Every time he attempted to raise himself of course he rang the bell and this whole haunting of the house was by an intrusion of flesh and not ghosts.

We do not believe in so innocent an explanation being the true one of the ghosts and wicked pranks that have been played on by the last few years by the jested parties in Titusville. First, we believe it was all wicked tricks and frauds for the purpose of deceiving and cheating. Our faith in the uniformity of nature and its laws is one of the best results of the education of the present day. And for the sake of the hundreds, if not thousands who are constantly deceived by such silly tricks, we should be glad to see the whole affair, and the wicked contrivers of these exploits in posture exposed and, if possible, punished.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Fasting—Eating Like.

Medicine, which provisions of all kinds are so dear, and procurable by many only at a very limited extent, it must be consoling to learn, on the authority of an eminent English physician and physiologist, that occasional abstinence from food is likely to be more beneficial than otherwise. Dr. Franklin recommended fasting one day in the week. A workman would be slow in following this advice, unless the day of rest were chosen at rest. Dr. Dixey, the writer points out the fact that, although the Irish people suffer more from the scarcity of provisions than those of England, and have been subject to famine almost unknown to the latter, yet the average longevity in Ireland is greater than in England. This is not borne out by the record, however, in the assertion that persons the most miserable for their longevity were invariably to be found among the poorer classes of the people. These latter furnish indeed the large majority, but not a few from the princely and noble houses and the dignities of the church in different countries of Europe, might be named who reached a very advanced age. It will suffice for our present purpose to mention three historical characters among many others on the favored list, viz: Henry the Third of England, Fitzgerald and Palmerston, who were gathered to their fathers at the ages respectively of 80, 81 and 80 years. Lord Brougham still lives and is 87. Certain it is that, with advancing civilization, the mean duration of the value of life has gradually increased in much no time, or within the last two centuries. In Geneva, Switzerland, the increase during a little more than this period, has been from twenty one years and two months to forty years and five months. The gain is more note-able among the wealthier and well to do classes of the population of the city. On the other hand the miserable and the resistate furnish more cases of sickness from a higher rate of mortality.

—Where can even the most miserable always find sympathy? In the dictionary.

—The right man in the right place—a husband at home in the evening.

—Why is stagery like an over boiled egg? Because yoke is hard.

—"May fish be your coffin and water your grave," is a Feroite Chinese imprecation.

ONE HUNDRED BARREL WELL STRUCK ON TARR FARM.

PARTICULARS OF THE ARREST OF THE CONCORD BANK ROBBERS.

INTERVIEW BETWEEN THE PRESIDENT AND THE M. E. CHURCH DELEGATION.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Special to the Morning Herald.

TARR FARM, Feb. 14, 1866.

The Tarr Farm is now one of the most promising of any in the Venango region, as all the wells on the farm are pumping finely and gaining daily. The wells up the ravine are all turning out very good and is part of the best territory of any known, as there has not been a single failure out of ten wells that have been sunk.

The Keystone well, on the ravine, began pumping to-day at the rate of one hundred barrels.

This well is a new one and was only completed last Saturday, and gives indications of being the second best well on the farm; the Phillips being the largest, which is doing about three hundred barrels. This well is owned by Messrs. Aldrich, Doubleday, Archer and others.

There is now going down in the ravine several new wells, besides two that will be tested this week with very good prospects. W. D. J.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.

Full details of the modus operandi of the detectives in securing the arrest of the robbers of the Concord Bank and their plunder, are published here this morning.

It appears that after many unsuccessful efforts of Messrs. Heath and Hunt, Boston detectives, which includes trips to Philadelphia and other places, in which their efforts were aided by N. Y. detectives, they finally discovered some of the missing bonds on a man in this city, who was willing to sell them. Through his confession and information, on January 22d the detectives proceeded to Camden, opposite Philadelphia, thence during the night nineteen miles down the shore of the Delaware to a cottage near the village of Paulsboro, where they found the chief robber, a dextrous counterfeiter, named L. W. Moore, alias Charley Adams, who was taken to New York and committed on a charge of burglary. Nothing was found on Moore. The house was thoroughly searched; curtains pulled down, carpets ripped, desks broken open, beds examined, the flooring of all the rooms examined; but the search was unsuccessful. On digging under the stable, however, they found a glass jar, hermetically sealed, a few feet below the surface, which contained a hundred thousand dollars in bonds. They next dug some four feet below the sill of a water gate on the bank of the river, below high water, where they found a tin box containing seventy-nine thousand dollars in bonds. All the bonds have been identified by the bank officers, and altogether $196,431 of the stolen property was recovered and given over to the bank officers.

Moore is here in prison, awaiting a requisition from the authorities of Massachusetts. By statements made by Moore, he and an accomplice watched eight months for an opportunity to rob the bank, and succeeded in doing so in broad day light by using false keys, while the cashier was absent at dinner. Moore's accomplice was Henry Howard, alias "English Harry," who has left the country.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.

When the Committee of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, appointed to wait upon President Johnson, returned to the Conference yesterday, sitting at Alexandria, they reported that they had a most interesting and pleasing interview with the President, who had entertained them kindly, to the exclusion of other important business. They said they had laid before the President the case of the Church and of this Conference, which had been taken possession of by the military, and had informed him that it was rumored that the churches had been seized in accordance with an order issued by him.

The President replied that he was not aware of any such order.

The Committee had promised the President a written statement of the facts in regard to the church property and the position of the Conference.

At the conclusion of the report of the Committee, which was read by Mr. Wilson, Hon. John Hogan, Member of Congress from Missouri, who accompanied the Committee in their visit to the White House, rose and substantiated the statements of Mr. Wilson, and stated further that in a conversation with the President, Mr. Johnson had unmistakingly said that no such order as the one referred to had originated from him. He referred to an order from the War Department that had been issued in relation to a church at Winchester, but that order was directed to Gen. Hancock, to investigate the facts and make a report, and the President thought that it had been satisfactorily adjusted.

Mr. Hogan also mentioned the case of a church in Missouri, in which the President had directed an investigation to be made and the facts reported to him in order that he might make a proper adjustment of it.

Mr Hogan then stated that the policy of the President was to restore the rights of all loyal people and to leave future questions to be settled by the courts, after parties shall have been placed in the states they occupied prior to the past difficulties.

The Post's special says: The House has passed a resolution giving the Postmaster General the right to appoint twenty-nine more clerks. Republicans and Democrats alike voted for this resolution.

The stock market, though more active, has partially lost its late strength. At the morning Board the disposition to sell predominated and heavy blocks of stock was thrown upon the market. The leading stocks were generally ½@¾ lower. Large lines of shorts were put out. The market is more decidedly bearish than for several days. The change, however, appears to be merely one of the unaccountable freaks of speculation, and may at any moment be succeeded by an opposite turn of affairs. The impression is fast taking hold of the speculative community that the price of stocks does not at present depend so much as ordinarily upon their intrinsic value.

XXXIXth Congress—First Session.

HOUSE—Feb. 14.

The House passed the bill authorizing the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy to place gratuitously at the disposal of the New York Commissioners of Quarantine, such vessels or hulks as are not required for the uses of the government, in anticipation of the cholera.

The bill introduced by Mr. Garfield, to establish a national Bureau of Education, provides for a commissioner who shall make an annual report exhibiting the condition of education in the States and Territories, and diffusing such information as will promote the course of education throughout the country.

Mr. Alley, from the Committee on Post Office and Post Roads, reported a bill authorizing the Postmaster General, when the public service shall require, and until the 13th day of June, 1868, to deposit postage stamps with such persons as he may select for sale and cancellation, under the instructions of the Postmaster General. Compensation not exceeding five per cent. is to be allowed. The persons thus selected are to give bonds and security and to be subject to all penalties already provided by law.

A debate followed, but no action was taken.

The House then resumed the Michigan contested election case of Baldwin against Trowbridge. The House voted and kept Mr. Trowbridge in his seat.

The Speaker announced the Select Committee on the proposed Bureau of Education: Garfield, Patterson, Boutwell, Randall, Donnelly and Moulton.

Child and her Sister Republics.

The news from the Pacific and from across the Atlantic comes very opportunely Spain has undertaken, for reasons best known to itself to effect a lodgment on the territory of Chili, and Napoleon, it is said, intends to withdraw his troops from Mexico If the powerful monarch of France has found out that he committed a grave error in interfering with the affairs of this continent we may conclude that such in other words as Spain will arrive at the same conclusion in much less time Absorbed as we have been with the difficulties of our own position, we have not paid as much attention as usual to the concerns of our neighbors The Republics on this continent ought to make common cause with each other, and we therefore rejoice at this evidence of returning reason Possibly the treaty of peace may be of advantage to us for the 10th article provides that the contracting parties Bind themselves to prevent the emigrants or political refugees from abusing their asylum by conspiring against the government of the country whence they come, although it may be that the language is intended to apply only to malcontents in the aforementioned territories The treaties begin with the solemn adjuration In the name of God, and the objects to be attained are set forth in the words The States of America which are hereinafter mentioned desiring, trouble in order to provide for their respective interests by preventing their actions to molestate peace among their cities and to promote each common interests, have determined to secure these objects by means of international compacts The copies we have before us show marks of unskillful translation and yet the sense is clear It is quite evident that the word "International," used as mentioned, is to be restricted in its meaning to the species of the law which results from or controls the formation of facts between particular nations for in its ordinary and most comprehensive sense it applies to those principles that govern the intercourse and define and establish the relative rights of nations generally These treaties have been formed at a most auspicious juncture It is seen that Maximilian cannot maintain himself unassisted and the support hitherto vouchsafed to him may soon be withdrawn The establishment of a powerful empire in Mexico, sustained by European influence would have afforded a very appreciable moral support to the aggressive movements of Spain, for "birds of a feather flock together," and the whole brood of monarchies were fluttering their wings in anticipation of a lofty flight Moreover, the treaties are valuable as affording to the American States generally, outside of our own domain, a ready solution of intercolonic difficulties and as showing the absolute necessity of union in order to promote the welfare of the people of this continent. It may be that while we are writing these lines the contest has begun in the waters of the Pacific It is a matter of regret that the Chilians have not a more formidable navy The odds may be in favor of Spain at first but the immense distance which separates the country of the Grandees and the Dons from the shores of the hither ocean, will materially interfere with a vigorous prosecution of the naval contest Our sympathy is entirely with the Chilians, and we hope to hear of the ultimate discomfiture of her "Christian Majesty's fleet

Fatal Runaway Accident.

Yesterday morning a frightful accident occurred to the Tionesta stage which resulted in instantly killing one of the passengers and severely injuring the driver

It appears that the stage started from Tionesta yesterday morning with one gentleman passenger, Major Geo W Stadden, and subsequently picked up two other passengers Major Stadden wishing to stop at the United States Hotel the driver turned down Martin street at a very rapid pace, and in rounding up to the United States Hotel, brought the wagon in contact with a post standing on the corner of the street The horses dashed furiously across the street and brought the stage in collision with the barber's sign post standing on the opposite corner The violent concussion threw the whole of the passengers out, Major Stadden was killed almost instantly, being hurled with great violence against the corner of the house, he breathed but a few moments after and then expired The driver received two or three severe cuts on the head and the other two passengers were more or less injured

The body of Major Stadden was removed to the parlor of the United States Hotel, and the driver was also conveyed there, where his wounds were dressed by Dr Fletcher Oakes

Great excitement prevailed during the dressing of the wounds An eager crowd filled the room and many were the speculations as to who the dead man was Squire Burgess soon arrived and proceeded to empanel a coroner's jury The jury, after making a preliminary examination adjourned until 4 o clock

Two diaries were found in the pocket of the deceased containing about $419, chiefly in green backs, but there was no mark to show who he was A heavy gold watch chain was found in the watch pocket of his pants He is about five feet ten inches in height, slenderly built, with light complexion and blue eyes

During the afternoon his valise was opened and several letters found but none indicating his name, and it was not until his certificate of discharge from the army was found that his name was discovered, which was Orlof W Sadden, he enlisted in the 110th New York Infantry Volunteers as a private, and was discharged as Sergeant Major

It transpired that he had been working for a man in Tionesta by the name of John Arlington, and having left his situation was on his way to Philadelphia, when he unfortunately met his death It is not known whether he was married or not, but he appeared to be a man of very regular habits Everything on his person and his clothing all bore evidence of the gentleman He appeared to be about 35 years of age

The following is the verdict of the jury

That Orlof W Stadden came to his death by the fast and reckless driving of John C. Kell, of the Tionesta and Titusville Stage Line

The jury have taken charge of the remains of the deceased and his effects until such time as his friends come forward to identify him

CAUSTIC SODA —We call the attention of refiners in the oil region to the advertisement of Mr James H Bunting, who being in direct communication with the largest importers of Caustic Soda is enabled to offer the same at the lowest market rates.

Letter from Parkersburgh.

PARKERSBURGH, West Va, Feb 12th, 1866

Editors Morning Herald

Previous to starting upon our tramp to the interior, we tarried at Parkersburgh to refresh ourselves

This place is the county seat of Wood county It is very pleasantly situated at the confluex of the Little Kanawha with the Ohio River

Steamboats connect here from all points on the main rivers and their tributaries, from Pittsburgh to New Orleans, and the Baltimore & Ohio and Marietta & Cincinnati Railroads make this place a central point, hence its commercial importance of the place Oil men also find it a market and an outlet for well products

The city also luxuriates in three banks, one daily and one weekly newspapers and various other institutions, religious political and commercial, bespeaking to the world the enterprise and energy of its inhabitants Its principal public house is kept by Mr J Wm Dent, is called the "Swan" House and is a credit to the place

Having recuperated our physical strength we started at 7 a m, per N W Va Railroad for "Fatons" Fumpf a station situated on said railroad about twenty miles from Parkersburgh, and the nearest point to White Oak Run

In due season we arrived at the Tunnel Here we found a miniature Titusville Platforms with oil barrels filled and empty cars being loaded and drawn up and down Upon inquiry we found that about 100 to 200 barrels of oil were shipped from this point daily

The place looked fresh, a few rough board houses were erected and others were in the course of construction We applied for a building, lot, teams, &c, in order to test the market, and found that seven hundred dollars in greenbacks would give us the right to build

The announcement that the stage for "White Oak was about starting, cut short any further inquiry We took our seats and were soon in motion

The day was mild and pleasant the air pure and exhilarating our way led mostly through valley and over mountains still clothed in all their primitive wildness Not a with the warbling music of the bird cheerily and the mere hooting of the wild fowl of the mountain perpetrated down upon us at odd intervals or mournfully murmuring as some mountain rose there, seemed to go forth from the united voices of the forest, keeping in unison with the location of the human heart and blending together in one common accord anthems of praise to the Great Creator

In the course of an hour or so we arrived at the Farm named "White Oak Run We found it lying at the base of two very high mountains (some portions of Oil Creek resemble it) The run is said to be in the Great Oil Belt or Lyderia

There must have been considerable volcanic disturbance of the earth at this point Here come together different runs and forks forming into measure a basin Nature had cloth d the bare bones of earth formed its river ravines and then clothed them something of romantic aspect

There was considerable activity displayed in the erection of derricks and building of engine houses Many wells were down, so we understood to be drilled by horse power, the modus operandi being, precisely the same as used by the Pennsylvania farmers in the spring

It being noon we put up at the only hotel in the place, it being gotten up under moderate pretensions The bill of fare consisted of baked pork and beans and boiled hominy and coffee without milk We had lost our appetites visiting down to the table We paid our bills—six bits and felt relieved when under the pure, wholesome air of heaven

The town further consisted of about a dozen frame buildings of different grades from a board log house to a shebang A telegraph wire completed the affair Other buildings we were assured would be erected in spring, and that about seventy houses of about one acre each had been disposed of with a bonus from $500 to $5 000, on a basis of one third oil royalty to land interest

The production of White Oak Run is variously estimated at one time yielding about 250 to 300 barrels daily At present the production is thought to be not more than 150 barrels

The "Harkness" well the "Eureka" well of this city, had had some difficulty recently with the pumping gear and after various delays only just got matters in running order While we were at the rank she was producing the much to two inch tube, its full blows the gas about three quarters of the liquid was water

The Longmore well was producing about twenty five to thirty barrels and the "Scott" well about ten to fifteen barrels daily The Harkness and "Longmore" wells are shallow being respectively 165 and 187 feet to oil The "Scott" well is 425 feet to oil

The oil from this region is of a dark green color, and on the same order as Oil Creek oil It is very heavy lubricator, the gravity is somewhere about 38°

We were unable to ascertain its market value but learned that considerable difference existed between the producer and the purchaser as to its worth Considerable of the oil is said to be stored in many of the principal cities of the Union having got so far east as Boston

We returned to Faton's Tunnel in time to take the 6 p m, train for Parkersburg, having been paid for our trouble and expense and with the conviction that within the next sixty to ninety days there would be considerable excitement in oil matters about "White Oak" Run

SQUIRE, Jr

Fire Test of Oil.

SHAFFER FARM, Feb 14, 1866

Editors Morning Herald

Nothing in your paper last week an article in regard to the Fire Test of Oil and becoming interested in the same, knowing it to be a subject in which every one that uses it should feel deeply interested, I have taken upon myself to test some of the principle refineries and find out the modus operandi I am prepared to say that it is truly a scientific business and requires great skill as well as close attention, especially in cold weather, as the oil undergoes certain changes, which only those that are thoroughly experienced can detect

In starting at the Hope Oil Works near Shaffer Farm I found that they were manufacturing oil and saw then use the instrument for testing the combustibility of oil The mercury in the pyrometer rose to 140 deg Fah heat

I tried to ignite it with a burning paper, but found it was impossible,

I learned from the gentlemanly employees that 110 deg Fah is the highest test that is necessary I found every kind of instruments that are used in the manufacturing of oil, such as oilometers, hydrometers, pyrometers, thermometers, &c, showing a determination to make it perfectly safe More anon,

A NEW WELL ON WEST HICKORY —A new well was struck on West Hickory on Monday last, on the Green farm, according to our informant It is pumping fifty barrels a day lubricating oil A new kind of pump is used in this well It has a double valve, an inch pipe is used as sucker rods, all the fluid passing through it, instead of through the tubing

"Nary" Valentine.

The following soul harrowing communication may well arouse the sympathies of every susceptible mind We are assured it is writ in sincerity, and we commend it to the perusal of those whose "neglect" has occasioned such a desperate resolve on the part of the disconsolate writer We contemplate with real anguish his inevitable fate "Beware of sidders, Sanford," was the injunction of the senior Waller, "they is cutkin' and willin' afore marriage, but afterwards they is always whinin and ungovernable"

MESSRS EDITORS—A week or nearly have I waited the office, the post office, the office where Valentines issue to delight the hearts of thousands, but I have watched in vain "Nary," I said on Monday, as I turned hopefully away, for perhaps they would yet come, I argued "Nary," I repeated on Tuesday as the mail though full of other matter, came to me empty and cold "Nary," I reiterated on Wednesday over the chaotic mass which by before me, of all sorts of mail matter except the missive sought "Nary," I mournfully exclaimed this morning, when the mail came in and hope went out Not a vestiture even Not even memento has remembered me That there is no vindictive individual who would make fun of me, I am glad to know, but where are my female friends Where those delicate testimonials I was wont to receive long since Have I grown ugly and old? Then the looking glass deceives me Are there no affections extant for me? I believe there are Is there no sweet little cherub that sits up aloft for me? Has Saint Valentine been struck from the Calendar? I pause like Brutus for a reply—and—I confess it with sorrow—from present indications I shall continue to pause, though I would say confidentially to you that among the train there is—him—well, an individual

I dearly love myself,
As with a her train,
Or will to a her blame
I think cheese to call

With this happy consciousness, I bid defiance to the sex, rich and poor, long and short, handsome or ugly of Titusville and suburbs My mind is perfected for Gotham, and with its cyclsion glass widows I snap my fingers at St Valentine, not questioning that all his sweetmeats are sour

I remain, yours only, TIMUS

SERAPHSON'S FARM—The interest taken in this farm is steadily increasing and the reputation it has already established is being well sustained by recent discoveries The Ocean Oil Company own the land interest of the same farm and the first strike was that of the Ocean well on the first of September last In the succeeding months of October and November a number of producing wells were found and since that period the quantity of oil produced has been steadily on the increase and there are now numbers thirty bar to record on any portion of the farm All wells which have commenced, including the first strike, are still yielding up their treasure and with little or no exception, without any diminution The most recent strikes on this farm are No 5 which commenced flowing a fortnight since and is yielding over twenty barrels per day and No 24 which formerly pumped but twenty four barrels is now flowing nearly or quite eighty barrels per day The sucker rods were withdrawn week before last, when it immediately commenced flowing at the above rate

Producing wells on this farm are as follows

Well	Bbls per day
Ocean Flows	80
Arctic Flows	40
Seraphson	25
Noble Flows	75
Nelson Pumps	60
Nelson Pumps	3
Noble Flows	20
No 24 Flows	80
Rose Flows	20

The gravity of this oil is about 40 deg All the wells above enumerated are on what is called Blair's farm, and are situated, without exception high up on the hill, some of them at an elevation of at least two hundred and fifty feet above the level of Oil Creek, which runs along the valley below

JAMES G CLARK the celebrated vocalist and composer, will make his first appearance before a Titusville audience to-morrow evening at Corinthian Hall This popular ballad singer is known long and favorably known in Western New York as well as elsewhere His voice is singularly sweet, soft and appealing, and he modulates so finely and throws so much soul into his music that it would not be amiss to call him the sweet singer of Cayuga But what the New York Illustrated News says of him

James G Clark, the lyric poet and ballad singer, and who appeared in some of his original songs last week at Cooper Institute and Dr Chickering's Church, was born in Constantia N Y on the 24th day of June, 1820 Since entering the concert field he has become favorably known throughout the Union as a writer and composer of those popular songs and poems, "The Old Mountain Tree" "Bank of Liberty, Lover's Grave" "The Beautiful Hills" "Mount Ontario" "Tecumseh's Battle Hymn" "Marian Moore" "The Sweet to be Remembered" "Come out the Children of the Battle Day" As a writer of songs he is peculiar for exquisite melody of versification and striking beauty of figure and expression As a singer he is original in style, natural in manner displaying the most delicate appreciation of his subject a voice of great sweetness power and purity of tone and unmistakable evidence of refinement In rendering of certain classes of ballads appropriate to the times he probably has no superior The world admires his songs and we hope Mr Clark will write more as his poetry leads public sentiment instead of following it

THE SENATORIAL FACTION OF THE TUESDAYS AT CHRISTIAN HALL—The lecture which was to have taken place last evening at Corinthian Hall, on Temperance was postponed until some future evening owing to the non arrival of Mr W J Hymes from Harrisburg

The meeting however was called to order by appointing Mr Dennis Donovan to the chair Mr Donovan made a very few explanatory remarks to the effect that he had been notified both by letter and telegram to call the meeting, and apologized for the non appearance of the lecturer The meeting was then addressed by several naturally eloquent gentlemen whose speeches we are unable to report for want of space

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

FINANCIAL.

New York February 12

The money market is still supplied with capital in excess of the demand, which is moderately light, but on the increase for call loans These are made freely at six per cent, with a few exceptions, on government collaterals at five

The discount line is dull, and first-class commercial paper passes at 7 P cent, with occasional transactions at 7 8@7 P cent for long date

The bank statement for the week shows a decrease of $2,310 252 in deposits, for which it is difficult to account, owing to a clerical error in the return this week or last, as the drain went on and very limited In the present easy state of monetary affairs at this center, however, the bank statement is a document less anxiously consulted than it otherwise would be The legal tenders have increased only $580 227 The specie has decreased $507,608—a small amount compared with the aggregate payments for customs duties, but about equal to the amount paid in for the same

The sub Treasury and Custom House statement for the week shows that, include in the receipts for customs were $882 000 in gold and $2,578 733 in gold certificates As the government receives certificates when it sells gold this looks as if the Treasury had been a regular seller The loans have increased $98,400 only The increase of $16 235 in the circulation is due mainly to the issue of new notes by the national banks belonging to the association

America to Ireland.

BY JAMES G CLARK

The following tribute to Ireland was contributed to the New York Citizen, by James G Clark, the poet and musical composer. It has all the melody and fire of expression of Tom Moore's best efforts

"We will not forget thee, old Ireland, now
Thou the day-star still illumines thy heaven,
And the sigh of submission expires in a vow
To be free as thy girdle of waters!
The leaves of the Shamrock are flourishing here,
And we honor the heroes who bore them
Where Sheridan, Mulligan, Corcoran and Meagher,
Like pillars of fire went before them

The roar of the Lion is heard in the night,
As he drinks from the depths of thy fountains!
But the Eagles are pluming their pinions for flight
On the crags of Columbia's mountains,
They will fall on the Lion with talons of steel,
When the waters, is raised by their brothers,
They will strike, and the power of the tyrant shall reel
'Neath the pangs he has meted to others.

Forget not the time when the spirit of Moore,
Like the tropic breeze, moved in thy towers,
And warmed every garden and glen of thy shore
Till it blossomed with Liberty's flowers!
But languish not now for the summer of song—
Let the autumn wind over thee rages,
The fields are all ready, the reapers are strong,
Haste to garner the harvest of ages

Oh, Erin! thy golden hair mingles with gray,
And thy blue eyes are swimming in sorrow
But the millions who mock at thy vision to-day,
Will view thee in wonder to morrow,
Thou shalt rise from the anguish now rending thy breast,
And hurl back the scoffer, with scorning,
Thy night shall be lit by the Stars of the West,
Till it breaks into Freedom's full morning!

All Sorts.

—At twilight every hen becomes a rooster

—A military definition for a kiss—a report at headquarters

—What is worse than raining pitchforks? Hailing omnibuses.

—Why is a lady of fashion like a successful sportsman? Because she bags the hair

—We admire thunder, but as for lightening, we were never struck by it

—Why is U the gayest letter in the alphabet? Because it is always in fun

—How long did Cain hate his brother? As long as he was Abel

—When are soldiers like good flannels? When they won't shrink

—If a loafer and a gallon of whisky are sitting side by side, which will be drunk first?

—"I hate doctors' bills," as the man said when he caught the family physician in the act of kissing his wife.

—Why is a war like incursion like a lady in full dress? Because it is a raid (arrayed) for conquest

—Lip-service is considered discreditable to a Christian, but it is delightful thing between two lovers

—A Yankee has just taught ducks to swim in hot water with such success that they lay boiled eggs

—Why was Herod a wife like a Fenian organization? Because she had a head sent her (hired centre)

—A French newspaper says only three of its subscribers are bald, and they are in arrears for subscription

—"Thrift follows fowling," as the hunter said when he killed six fawns and sold them for a handsome sum

—The tailor came over cut—Lulu, the son of Adam Forepaugh, very "cut" him after he had killed his brother

—Why is a man with a curved spine like a house, with a rear piazza? Because he has a back stoop

—"I'm on the trail of a dear," as the fellow said when he stepped on the dress of a beauty in the street

—"How long did Adam remain in Paradise before he married?" said an amiable spouse to her husband "Till he got a wife," was the cutting reply

—"Caught in her own net," as a man said when he saw one of the fair sex hitched in her crinoline

—Why is a husband like a Mississippi steamboat? Because he never knows when he may get a blowing up —A gentleman complaining of the various imposts and taxes, says he can not put on his boots in the morning without a stamp

—"Shorge, why is the James river like a keg of lager beer?" "Because they both flow into the Dutch Gap?"

—The character of an upright man is like a pair of boots The more you black it the more it shines

—"See here, my friend, you are drunk" "Drunk, to be sure I am, and have been for the last three years You see my brother and me are on the temperance mission He lectures while I set a frightful example"

—A young lady out west who lately collided with an ice bound sidewalk, remarked, as she assumed a perpendicular position, "I'll have a man to hang on to before another winter"

—A Richmond paper records the desperate threat of a man there who declared he would have money—"I'll be lied to work for it"

—A down east editor, in a complimentary notice of a vigilant general, was made by the omission of a single letter to call him a battle scared veteran The poor man mistened to make amends in his next issue by stating that it was his intention to have dedicated the hero a bronze statue to him

—"Do you propose to put the union store, Mrs. Partington?" asked a friend

—"Yes" replied the old lady, "but I'm positive you know which some time the whiskey trade is the best but I believe the ring tail will be the most beneficial to him"

—Some lads have found a new way of taking pictures by which they can be better taken in the night than in the day time A photographer has missed several from the transom that hung by his door, and he doesn't approve of the new plan

CARVER'S

DOUBLE ACTING

OIL PUMP.

This pump consists of two barrels, one within the other and each having its separate valves and acting independently of the other The action is

DOUBLE,

and as much oil is raised at the

DOWNWARD

as at the

UPWARD STROKE.

THE DOUBLE SET OF VALVES

allows the FREE ESCAPE of gas through one or the other of the barrels, without inflicting into pumping and thus enables the pump to work without obstruction in wells where the common pump cannot at work at all of double the strength of the old one has been invented which will be supplied FREE to all parties using the old sliding valve in these pumps These pumps have not been used on over one hundred wells and we give below a few of the certificates we have received and ask an trial present of the same.

AN IMPROVED PISTON

TESTIMONIALS

TITUSVILLE, Nov 27, 1865

Messrs Burlin Hart & Burrows

I am now using Carver s Double Acting Oil Pump in a well belonging to the Tennessee Oil Co, and can pump more oil with less power than with the common pump and without interruption from gas Inclosing of another rod &c It is far superior to any other pump, in my estimation, for pumping oil, and can draw fully feet the working N J TOMKINS, Superintendent

FLEETVILLE WELL Watson Flats Oil Creek Pa Nov 1, 1865

Messrs Burlin Hart & Burrows

I have used and been well pleased with the working of Carver s Double Action Oil Pump in our wells and in other wells in this neighborhood It is a valuable and efficient pump far superior to the pumps in common use in oil wells, and have no hesitation in saying that it will raise double the amount of fluid from a well with an amount of steam than can be raised with a common pump JOSEPH A SCOTT Supt Rose Farm

OFFICE OF ETNA OIL CO. Oil Creek, Pa, Nov 27 1865

Messrs Burlin Hart & Burrows

I have used in our wells and been acquainted with Carver s Double Acting Oil Pump for the last three months In one of our wells it was impossible to work the common pump on account of the gas forcing pump worker without difficulty in this well I think Carver s pump will pump twice as much oil as any other pump with the same amount of steam CHAS LANING, Supt.

UNION WELL West Hickory Run, Pa, Nov 24, 1865

Messrs Burlin Hart & Burrows

We pumped the Union Well on West Hickory Run, about twelve days with the pump ordinarily used in oil wells and could not get it to clear over one barrel of oil per day About the 20th of Sept last we put one of Carver s Double Acting Oil Pumps into the well, and the quantity of oil has immediately increased and the well is now producing 45 barrels per day. I M FOSTER

CHAMPION WELL Plumer Run, Oil Creek, Pa, Nov 24, 1865

Messrs Burlin Hart & Burrows

This well was pumped about six weeks with the common working barrel, giving an average production of about 30 barrels per day The gas in this well was so strong as to keep one half the time up the tubing preventing its walking to work We then introduced Carver s Double Acting Patent Pump and pumped the well with it for two days without being relined or repaired. During this time the production of the well was brought up to an average 170 barrels per day and in some days 80 barrels This pump verified without any doubt all we claim for it. GEO C. HARTLETT Supt

TUNNEY FARM Petroleum Centre, Nov 20 1865

Messrs Burlin Hart & Burrows

This best certify that I commenced operating the Mill Creek well Nov 1st last with one of your Patent Double Action Oil Pumps, and after working for three months in which time it was but lower 8 feet—I am satisfied that the best well pumped from two to three barrels per day, and for four days per week, from Saturday Evening to Monday morning, it is out two days per week I put in one of Carver s Patent Double Acting Pump, which increased the daily yield within two weeks to 24 barrels per day, which is the present production per day It is working on this well the shortest rods I ever saw in the world or even the slightest leakage or repair. I have at present eight of these pumps in operation and would use no other N H FLAYN Supt For Dr M C Egbert

OFFICE OF THE MAPLE SHADE OIL CO Oil Creek, Nov 30 1865

Messrs Burlin Hart & Burrows

We are using Carver s Pump in the Coquette and Butts wells and propose to introduce them into all our wells as soon as we consider them to be the best pumps in use for pumping oil, and will then put them on. Yours truly
